 The 21 studies in this volume, which deal with issues of social and intellectual history, religion and historical methodology, explore the ways whereby over the course of a few hundred years - roughly between the second and the fifth centuries A.D. - an anthropocentric culture mutated into a theocentric one. Rather than underlining the differences between a revamped paganism and the emergent Christian traditions, the essays in the volume focus on the processes of osmosis, interaction and acculturation, which shaped the change in priorities among the newly created textual communities that were spreading across the entire breadth of the late antique oecumene. The main issues considered in this connection include the phenomena of textuality and holy scripture, canonicity and exclusion, truth and error, prophecy and tradition, authority and challenge, faith and salvation, holy places and holy men, in the context of the construction of new orthodox readings of the Greek philosophical heritage. Moreover the volume suggests that intolerant attitudes, which form a characteristic trait of monotheisms, were not an exclusive preserve of Christianity (as the Enlightenment tradition would insist), but were progressively espoused by pagan philosophers and divine men as part of the theory and practice of Hellenism's theological koine. Efforts to establish the monopoly of a revealed truth against any rival claims were transversal to the textual communities which emerged in late antiquity and remodelled the intellectual and spiritual landscape of the Greater Mediterranean.

DOI: 10.1007/s11159-008-9097-9 Springer Science+Business Media B. V. 2008 The papers in this collection have been selected from over 800 presentations given at the XIIIth World Congress of Comparative Education Societies, held at the University of Sarajevo, Bosnia and Herzegovina, from 3 to 7 September 2007. The Congress was hosted on behalf of the WCCES by the Mediterranean Society of Comparative Education and in association with the International Association of Intercultural Education. For such an international gathering, it was appropriate that the theme chosen was "Living Together: Education and Intercultural Dialogue", providing scope for contributions by participating scholars, policy makers and practitioners in education from some 70 countries. The presenters approached contemporary educational issues with knowledge and insights about a world characterized by the tensions and demands of global and local interests, by regional conflicts and post-conflict deliberations, and by the global diaspora, with cultural, religious and linguistic diversity within both small and large states. Only a very few papers could be included for this collection, but they represent some of the key topics under discussion during the Congress. The papers were selected from the recommendations of the convenors of the 13 Thematic Groups, the keynote addresses and several symposia. Diritto del lavoro dell'Unione Europea Springer Science & Business Media The 1960s and 1970s saw a marked change in the approach to built heritage conservation. From a focus on the preservation of individual buildings, attention turned to the conservation, regeneration, and reuse of entire historic districts. A key player in this process was the Belgian art and architecture historian Raymond Lemaire (1921-1997), yet beyond those in conservation circles few people know of his work and influence or even recognize his name. In this book, Claudine Houbart traces how the change came about and the role played by Lemaire. She describes his work and influence and in so doing provides a history of urban conservation over the last four decades of the twentieth century and beyond. The first chapter summarizes Lemaire's background from his training during the Second World War and his work as a Monuments Man immediately after the war, to his role in the drafting of the Venice Charter and his appointment as Secretary General of ICOMOS (International Council on Monuments and Sites). The next chapter describes the rehabilitation of Great Beguinage in Louvain. Now a UNESCO World Heritage Site, the project was directed by Lemaire and is a perfect example of the restoration of an entire district. The following chapter provides case studies of his work in Brussels, demonstrating his methodology in action. The final chapter discusses the transposition of the model of the historic city to urban projects and summarizes Lemaire's influence on heritage conservation today, particularly integrated conservation. His participation in drafting key conservation documents sponsored by the Council of Europe, UNESCO and ICOMOS, and his desire to revise the Venice Charter are discussed. The book's conclusion reflects on what has gone before, ending aptly with Lemaire's own words 'the past, properly understood, is one of the references for judging the value of today and tomorrow'.

Providing a balanced view of Sartre's philosophy in relation to contemporary trends in Continental philosophy, this volume shows that many of the topics associated with Lacan, Foucault, Levi-Strauss, and Derrida are to be found in the work of Sartre, in some cases as early as 1936.

These papers examine library policies and organizational structures in light of the literature of ergonomics, high reliability organizations, joint cognitive systems and integrational linguistics. Bade argues that many policies and structures have been designed and implemented on the basis of assumptions about technical possibilities, ignoring entirely the political dimensions of local determination of goals and purposes as well as the lessons from ergonomics, such as the recognition that people are the primary agents of reliability in all technical systems. Because libraries are understood to be loci of human interaction and communication rather than purely technical systems at the disposal of an abstract user, Bade insists on looking at problems of meaning and communication in the construction and use of the library catalog. Looking at various policies for metadata creation and the results of those policies forces the question: is there a responsible human being behind the library web site and catalog, or have we abandoned the responsibilities of thinking and judgment in favor of procedures, algorithms and machines?

The Concept of Contraction in Giordano Bruno's Philosophy Food & Agriculture Org.

Nel presente volume sono esaminati i profili istituzionali e taluni aspetti di diritto materiale dell'ordinamento giuridico dell'Unione europea in materia di lavoro, con opportuna ricostruzione delle loro fasi evolutive e valorizzando le soluzioni interpretative fornite dalla giurisprudenza. Particolare attenzione è rivolta al problematico sviluppo del processo di integrazione europea, che nel primo ventennio del Secolo XXI è messo a dura prova da seri problemi economici, finanziari e sociali e dalla pressione migratoria, rispetto alla quale gli Stati membri stentano a trovare risposte adeguate alle dimensioni e alla drammaticità del fenomeno e tardano ad adottare una strategia unitaria e di lungo respiro. L'attacco di taluni Paesi membri ai principi e ai valori costitutivi dell'Unione, e la disaffezione di parti dell'opinione pubblica ad essi, talora alimentata da partiti e movimenti politici di breve memoria e di mediocre cultura istituzionale, sono segni evidenti della crisi.

La prophétie qui a toujours été très utilisée en Europe occidentale est étudiée ici comme arme de guerre des pouvoirs entre les XVe et XVII siècles. Cet ouvrage s'intéresse à l'emploi des prédications comme instrument de légitimation des pouvoirs - notamment le pouvoir royal - mais aussi en tant que point d'appui de l'impérialisme et du messianisme.

Through the concept of contraction, Giordano Bruno (1548-1600) endeavoured to explain the relationship of God to his Creation in a way that conformed with his pantheistic view of nature as well as his heterodox view of man's relationship to God. The concept of contraction is twofold. In the ontological sense it denotes the way in which the One, or God, descends to multiplicity. In the noetic sense it accounts for the ways in which the individual human soul ascends towards God through a reversed process of contemplation. Bruno denied the efficacy of the several psychical, psychological and medical states traditionally thought to aid contemplation and noetic ascent towards God. In his view the only means was philosophical contemplation, the use of memory being one important form. Philosophical contemplation elevated the mind from the fragmented multiplicity of sense impressions to an understanding of the principles governing the sensible world. This publication is the first book-length study dedicated to concept of contraction in Bruno's philosophy. Moreover, it explores his sources for this concept. Traditionally Ficino's translation of Plotinus, dating from the second half of the fifteenth century, has been seen as a key source to the Neoplatonism informing Bruno's philosophy. In The Concept of Contraction in Giordano Bruno's Philosophy another Neoplatonic source is considered, namely the pseudo-Aristotelian Liber de Causis (Book of causes), which has not yet been examined in the context of Renaissance Neoplatonism. This work, probably written in Arabic in the ninth century, was translated into Latin in the twelfth century and remained well known to many late Medieval and Renaissance philosophers. Catana argues that this work may have prepared for Ficino's translation of Plotinus, and that in some instances it provided a common source to Renaissance philosophers, Bruno and Nicholas of Cusa (1401-1464) being conspicuous examples discussed in this book.

This book offers a collection of methods and approaches aimed at resolving some of humanity's most pressing problems on a local and global level. Many of the methods are practical, with straightforward application and demonstrated positive outcomes whilst others are more visionary. Important for transitioning to a more sustainable world, these methods allow for the constructive challenging of existing western development and governance.

Au-delà du structuralisme Routledge

...Ce recueil n'a pas pour but de seulement contester le structuralisme, encore moins de le condamner, mais de contribuer à le connaître. L'arrogance dogmatique de certains structuralistes pendant leur belle époque, ne saurait justifier un dogmatisme opposé. Après cette période, nous ne pouvons plus penser et réfléchir comme avant. Seul un dogmatisme (philosophique et/ou politique) peut affirmer un monolithisme doctrinal, immuable et invulnérable, insensible au temps. Ce n'est d'ailleurs pas seulement de l'idéologie (et de l'épistémologie) structuraliste, qu'il est question pour l'inventorier, mais de tout ce qui a marqué la même période : la planification (ou semi-planification) centralisatrice, la croissance programmée, la consommation cybernétisée, l'action de la technostructure, l'efficacité ou l'échec des modèles dans les divers domaines, à l'échelle nationale ou mondiale, etc. Procéder autrement, ce serait démentir le structuralisme lui-même et ses conquêtes. Avec les autres aspects ou éléments synchroniques, il doit constituer un tout, un ensemble. La période structuraliste comporte une expérience ; elle a permis, beaucoup plus et mieux que la période existentialiste, d'assister à la naissance d'une idéologie. Elle apportait et impliquait les concepts qui permettaient de suivre cette genèse. Ainsi ce recueil de l'en deçà, pour mener vers l'au-delà.
