Hold it! Sit! Stay! That's better. No, I am not suggesting that you go to the New York Times and tell them, "I have a book, written by the devil. Only he's not really the devil. He's an extra-terrestrial. And he's not evil. He's God's good brother. It's God who is evil." Do you think I came to you to have you put in a funny farm? You're to publish my manuscript under your own name, as science fiction. Isn't science fiction the only format under which any sane moral philosophy could be published for the past fifty years? You agree? I am so glad. I have to go now. The Overlords are waiting to take me home.

« Elle mentait aux journalistes. Le département publicité de la Paramount s'en était vite aperçu. Ça avait commencé par des détails, parce que ça commence toujours ainsi... Elle mentait sur sa couleur préférée : rouge, répondait-elle à l'un, violet, à un autre. Enfin, ils réalisèrent qu'elle se faisait passer pour ce qu'elle n'était pas. Elle disait que sa famille était aristocrate, que ses ancêtres étaient anglais, qu'elle avait vécu en Suisse, qu'elle était née dans une rivière... » Quel secret cache Nicole Smith dite Nikkie dite Veronica, star de l'âge d'or hollywoodien ? Pourquoi semble-t-elle fuir sa mère, les hommes, jusqu'à ses enfants ? Et que révèlent ses mémoires inquiétants, retrouvés près de son corps sans vie ? Cinquante ans après la disparition de Veronica, une journaliste française se penche sur cette affaire irrésolue, comme une photographie ou une séquence légendaire en fourreau noir. Mais ce Los Angeles de cinéma ne livre pas facilement ses secrets. Nelly Kapriélian nous offre une plongée fascinante dans le destin d'une star oubliée, victime de sa mère, de ses mauvais amis, du Moloch cinéma, cruelle aussi...

This book is the first major study of French Caribbean literature in light of the concept of postcoloniality. Postcolonial theory debates have developed in the anglophone domain, and have not as yet referred prominently to francophone literature. Jeannie Suk investigates how the literature of Martinique and Guadeloupe provides a kaleidoscopic view of the paradoxes at the heart of postcoloniality. Through subtle and provocative readings of Aimé Césaire, Edouard Glissant, Maryse Condé, Baudelaire, Freud, and others, she illuminates how the development of French Caribbean literature and debates about négritude, antillanité, and creolité contribute to theories of in-betweenness and incompleteness central to postcolonial modes. In each chapter, lively and detailed analyses of literary and critical texts reveal connections between key thematic, conceptual, rhetorical, and psychic issues that form the interface of Caribbean and postcolonial concerns. The first part paves theoretical ground, focusing on readings of two seminal texts, Césaire's Cahier d'un retour au pays natal and Glissant's Discours antillais; the second part concentrates on Maryse Condé's exemplary work. Lucidly articulating the overlap and interplay of the distance of oceanic crossing, the discontinuities of allegorical signification, and the gap at the heart of trauma, Suk probes the paradoxical dynamic of impossible yet inevitable returns in space, time, and the psyche. She shows how literal and metaphorical "crossings" both produce and impede history and representation. The result is a new framework for understanding the intersection of postcolonial, psychoanalytic, deconstructive, and French Caribbean problems in a language attentive to improbable recurrences across theories and registers. Postcolonial Paradoxes is a major contribution to criticism and theory, of interest to scholars and students of postcolonialism, Caribbean and African diaspora literature, French literature, and psychoanalysis.

Over the past 50 years, major changes have taken place in the distribution of aquatic plants in Europe. Many species have declined whilst other species have increased in abundance or spread, including several that were originally introduced from the New World. Despite the relative richness of the aquatic flora of Britain and Ireland, it is a neglected area of study. This book is not an identification manual but provides a summary of the distribution, habitat and reproductive biology of 200 taxa in 72 genera, with individual distribution maps, and also summarizes their distribution overseas.
