This pivot compares mourning rituals in Archaic & Classical Greece and Pre-Qin China to illustrate some of the principles and methods used in comparative studies. It focuses on three main aspects of mourning of the dead before burial — lamentation, mourners' gestures and behaviors, and mourning apparel — to demonstrate the cultural function, purpose, and social influence of mourning. A key comparative study of rituals at the heart of both Western and Chinese culture, this text highlights the cultural function and social influence of rituals of two ancient peoples and will be of interest to all scholars of comparative religion, sociology and anthropology. Tears I Shed Rowman & Littlefield

From the first Tin Pan Alley tunes to today's million-view streaming hits, pop songs have been supported and influenced by an increasingly complex industry that feeds audience demand for its ever-evolving supply of hits. Harvey Rachlin investigates how music entered American homes and established a cultural institution that would expand throughout the decades to become a multibillion dollar industry, weaving a history of the evolution of pop music in tandem with the music business. Exploding in the 1950s and '60s with pop stars like Elvis and the Beatles, the music industry used new technologies like television to promote live shows and record releases. More recently, the development of online streaming services has forced the music industry to cultivate new promotion, distribution, copyright, and profit strategies. Pop music and its business have defined our shared cultural history. Song and System: The Making of American Pop Music not only charts the music that we all know and love but also reveals our active participation in its development throughout generations.

 Her people uprooted by broken promises. Her heart torn by conflicting desires. The Trail of Tears: The forced exodus of the Cherokee people from their homeland in Georgia to make way for the white gold miners and settlers. Katherine Blue Song's family never lived to see the Trail of Tears. They were massacred just as she returned from Philadelphia, where she'd been one of the country's first women trained as a doctor. Justis Gallatin, a white man, a rough-and-ready miner, was Jesse Blue Song's friend and partner. Before he buried the victims of the massacre, he made a solemn promise to protect Katherine. But the lovely and headstrong Cherokee healer would not be protected or owned by any man. Her destiny was with her own people, to use her skills on the long, arduous journey westward. From plush New York hotels to the savage sorrow of the Trail of Tears, Katherine and Justis are torn asunder by a continent's history and hurled together because of a passion as vast as the lands they love, lost, and fight to regain. The Beloved Woman is the prequel to Follow The Sun, a collection of three contemporary novels about the Gallatin descendants. Deborah Smith is the New York Times and Kindle bestseller of more than thirty-five romance and women's fiction novels. A Place To Call Home has been voted one of the best romance novels of the 20th century in two reader surveys. The Crossroads Café was No. 1 on the Kindle bestseller list, and has more than 700 4.5 star reviews. Learn more about Deborah's books at www.bellbridgebooks.com.

The Apollo; Or, Vocal Repository: Containing a Selection of Songs from Modern Authors, Etc Author House Songs of Joy in the Valley of Tears is about grief related to physical death and about the longing we have for a meaningful connection within safe, loving relationships. It's about our struggle to find that connection and the faith and energy it takes to remain there. Written over a time span of 37 years, these 84 poems and related Scriptures describe 12 aspects of grieving. Through the beauty of poetry and the inspiration of Scripture, readers will connect in healing ways with their losses? Name and process grief in their unique way? Overcome obstacles that block their path? Discover an oasis of hope, peace, and joy in the midst of their tear-filled valley? A counselor, blogger, and author, Jane Ault writes books, poems, and songs of encouragement for people who desire to grow toward emotional and spiritual maturity-become more like Jesus. Her book, Emotional Freedom: The Choices We Must Make, is available at Amazon and WestBow Press. Her book, Heart Connections: Finding Joy through Openness with God, is available on her website.

The Tears I Shed tells the story of Kayla, who has been married for fifteen years to the love of her life, but her seemingly happy marriage ends tragically after the sudden death of her husband and young son. As Kayla grieves for her loss and thinks that life couldn't get any worse, her husband's separate life which includes a mistress and twin son's further tears her life apart and sends her into seclusion from her family and friends. A year later, Kayla meets a handsome stranger named Justice and when it looks as if the sun is finally shining again, along comes Justice's ex Jazzmine Charles, who wreaks havoc in the lives of Kayla, Justice and her friends Kyra, Greg, Jenessis, Jahren and Felecia. Jazzmine will not stop until Justice is hers and will use any means necessary to complete her goal. Love, hate, betrayal, drama and tragedy are all in the day and life of these friends. Who will overcome and be the last standing in the game of love where rules do not apply.

Only two things stand in the way of two cantankerous women maintaining peace and independence in their twilight years—their daughters. Nellie wants nothing more than to live out her days in a house trailer in the desert, but her daughter Margie wants to sell the land while the offers are still hot. Nellie's sister-in-law, Iris, has no home and must rely on the kindness of others, but she has burned all of her bridges. Will she be able to mend the past hurts between she and her daughter Bethany, or will they part ways once and for all? Set in rural Arizona, where the only things pricklier than the cactus are the wit and drama. Reviews: "Suthern Hicks' tale about two elderly friends has that kind of cozy, down-home feel that makes you want to grab a cold glass of lemonade, your favorite backyard chair and set a spell with Nellie and Iris behind their Arizona desert trailer." -Critics' Choice: LA Weekly, Jim Crogan"Bring a hankie: Turtle Tears does it best to tug on the heartstrings. As its title suggests, the hankies come out late in "Turtle Tears" at the Taber Theatre. But since Suthern Hicks seems to have been inspired by the comedy-into-melodrama formula of "Steel Magnolias," you know those tears are going to come. Hicks has written a character-driven play uncommonly dependent on strong audience attachment to the (mostly) women on stage. If you're willing to stick it out with Hicks' gals...Turtle Tears produces an emotional pull." -Los Angeles Times, Robert Koehler"What a serendipitous delight it is to discover both a small theatre production performed with such professional polish and a new play which entertains and moves us. Such is the case with Suthern Hicks' new comedy-drama, Turtle Tears." -The Burbank Leader, Alan Raeburn Woman in Sacred Song Anchor Academic Publishing (aap_verlag)

 No one said a word as we struggled to walk in the blustery cold to the spot where we would gather one more time to be with her. We all stared ahead to the area resting under the large crucifix, where we would say goodbye to her for the last time. I looked at the small, square hole in the frozen ground and started trembling. This would be her final resting place. Choking back tears and gasping to catch my breath, I wondered how a young woman so full of life and goodness could be ripped away from us in such a cruel and horrific manner. How could this have happened? How would we survive? No answers came to me. The only truth was that Becky was dead, and our lives would be forever changed. BEING WITH BECKY is based on the true life-sharing experiences of two sisters from Northwest Ohio. The author weaves tales of their times together from early family gatherings to ski trips with friends, revealing the close bond they treasured deeply. When Becky is tragically killed, the author must wrestle with the emotional chaos that sets in and cripples her spirit. In a world that no longer makes any sense, she desperately tries to pick up the pieces of her life and vows to honor the sister who once called her, my hero.

A riches to rags cowboy. A hardened cowgirl. The gunshot that erases all doubt. Laura Warner knows nothing but horses. Her entire life has been lived on a ranch. It's her love, her dream, and aside from the love of her life, Quentin, it's the only thing that she ever thinks about. But when tragedy strikes at Kelsey Ranch, Laura is left to care for the horses and the land with the help of her siblings. Years later, Laura feels content with life, but when a gunshot blasts only days after she has to make a difficult decision, Laura learns that everything happens for a reason...and it doesn't always lead to more hardship...sometimes it leads to happiness. But can she convince herself that this is possible? Grayson Thomas is an out of work lowlife, who just happens to have world class siblings that drag him out of his rut days after he loses everything, or gives everything up, depending on one's perspective. When he makes the decision to flee from El Paso and move to Huttonville, just outside of Dallas, his brothers give him their thumbs up. Grayson has no idea that he's about to step into the world that he does, and when a gunshot blasts on his second day in Huttonville, he's left wondering if he should make tire tracks back to El Paso, or stay in Huttonville. When Laura's face becomes a staple in Grayson's life, what was once a demon craving becomes a distant memory. What he once worked hard for and lost soon becomes something that he may have again. Things that once brought him to the edges of demise, become obliterated and exist only in random nightmares. Grayson's tough exterior is softened through Laura's honest and thoughtful words, and Laura sees life in a new light, and learns to laugh and have fun again with someone that isn't family. But is this enough? Can two people who have been through so much, lost everything and worked hard to gain it back, learn to trust enough to let their guard down and see life and love for what it is? Short answer, yes. They both do. But just when they do, someone who has been watching from afar swoops in and threatens to take everything. Can they survive yet another tragedy...and more important, will they have to? This is a book about survival and love. In that order. This series is the start of a huge helping of feels. Each story has medium heat and a cliffhanger ending, so be sure to read the books in their proper sequence. Get addicted today! HEA (Happily Ever After) Ranch romance Cowboy romance Second chance romance Medical romance Medium heat Course language Cliffhanger ending "It is a lovely contemporary romance novella with intriguing characters." - Four Stars from Edith Wairimu, Readers'Favorite "Exceptional read. A poignant love story offering two people a second chance at love after losing their first mates in very tragic ways. - Five Stars from Linda Knight, Amazon Reviewer "I liked the style of writing in that it's unique and gives a voice to each person in the story. You feel like you get to know each person a little bit by reading the chapter as though that character is telling their own story. Highly recommended!" - Five Stars from cdstokes, Amazon Reviewer "If I could give this book 10 stars I would do so. What a wonderful story!" - 5 Stars from Sheryl Hamilton, Goodreads Reviewer "A great start to a new series. The characters are realistic and easy to like. The story line pulls you in and holds you captive until you turn the last page. The pages are filled with action, adventure, a bit of suspense and mystery and of course romance. You don't want to miss this great read." - 5 Stars from Kristi, BookSprout Reviewer

In 1980 Wendy followed the suggestion of a friend to keep a journal by just picking up a pencil and starting to write. By the following year, it became apparent to Wendy that the writings were not just her personal devotions. They had become the Songs of the Spirit, which Wendy has always maintained are not hers, but instead she is the messenger. A member of the New Hampshire Diaconate community suggested that the daily writing be shared through email. So began the ministry of sharing a morning message of hope, courage, understanding, forgiveness and love. Through this collection, the Songs begin a new journey, which Wendy offers with deep gratitude for the gift.

There are many people in the world who are interested in the Arabian Peninsula either because of its deep Islamic and civilized roots and rich cultural heritage or because of its immense wealth and strategic position. One would expect many of these people to be eager to know more about its culture, its intellectual activity and the way its creativity has confronted t many problems and transformations created by sudden shifts in circumstances. Arabs élites, men of letters as well as some critics, who have always viewed the Arabian Peninsula as the corner-stone of Islamic values and morality, Readers of this volume will find in Rahaf's poetry's creative talents, sensitive and compassionate face of Arabian Peninsula.
