Eleven-year-old Emma doesn't know that she comes from generations of tree singers, passed from mother to daughter. She doesn't believe she can sing. Her ailing grandmother has just come to live with the family. Her father is hardly ever at home. Her mother has been acting strange. To add to Emma's troubles, her mother's great uncle from England is coming to stay. Then, a strange old woman wearing a hat full of feathers appears mysteriously in her garden. She gives Emma a white swan feather that emits a haunting melody. Emma's only solace is the oak tree in her garden, which she names Annie Oakley. What she does not yet know is that Annie is part of a network of tree spirits who disguise themselves as old women. These spirits have come to Peachtree City to help Emma remember her mission to sing the Song of Creation and save the Great Mother tree.

Most people hold staunch scientific theories of how the world began from Genesis one. Confused and often frustrated we have understood the account to be a story when in reality it appears as a song introducing the story of God coming to dwell with his people. The song of creation is beautiful and rhythmic when listened to with the correct perspective. This book attempts to help you hear the music of the song of Creation found in Genesis one. Joel Woodard served as a missionary in Eastern Europe for nearly a decade before becoming a pastor of a church in Gresham, OR. He is the father of four and enjoys traveling, soccer, good movies and doing things with his family. He received a Masters degree from Western Seminary in Portland, OR.

"Dear Friend, All creation and all of life, every aspect of it, sings a song. Some songs are glad, some sad. All invite us to meet the Singer! May you find Him in these pages." Song of Creation is a book of poetry that is accessible to the average reader, perhaps even to one who does not normally read poetry. The subjects of the poems are varied, including the revelation of God in nature and relationships, life observations, tributes to good people who have passed, and a little humor. There is a chapter devoted to the poetry of the author's mother, who is also a published poet. Poetic reflections from the author's mission travels to Eastern Europe are included. Many different poetic forms are evident, including some free verse and the simple Japanese art form, haiku. Though the book gives an intimate, transparent glimpse into the author's personal and family life, there is much that perhaps mirrors your own experience.

In 1225 the infirm St. Francis, living in a hut in a church garden, wrote this poem in which he looks on the face of creation and blesses it in its totality. Our text is a translation of the poem by Matthew Arnold. We have illuminated each line with paintings -- "'Praised be my Lord for our brother the Wind'" is accompanied by a Corot painting of trees bent before a gale, and also an illustration by Frank Pape in which a dove is borne joyously upward. In this manner two faces of wind are shown, and the words made more vividly manifest.

Excerpt from Creation a Song of the Ages; Songs of the Christ and Other Poems Starting to study anew the Biblical account of Creation, for exegetical and pulpit purposes alone, a poem sprang up at once into mind. Seeking a sermon, there was found a song. The opening stanzas were written immediately; the remainder was completed after an interval, made necessary by the varied duties of a pastor's life, and the need of more extended research in special directions. An inspiration at first, the conception has been wrought out with painstaking care and thorough re-examination of authorities bearing upon scientific questions involved. Geologists are substantially agreed in finding evidence of distinct geologic ages, forming an ascending scale from the lowest and first formative conditions up to the highest and most complete. And it is found, upon comparison, that these progressive steps in creative work correspond in a surprising way with the Six Days of the Mosaic account. It is observed, too, that the order in which these ages have progressed is precisely that which is pictured in the Days of Moses. For example, Geology points to a period of time wherein the earth was subject to the action of original, formative, and contending elements, before the beginning of vegetable or animal life. So does the Bible. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books. "Here is a record of glory, revealing the method of achieving the heights, the way to unfold understanding of the Almighty Truths of God. "If you would awaken your soul to the divine symphony of the Universe, follow the way of 'overcoming,' the Way Christ trod. The record of His Path, the eternal, inner truths of power and fulfillment are now open, the sacred, inner knowledge that has lain dormant and in the depths of your being. "Ludwig Van Beethoven, who had become deaf, humbly acknowledged that his Symphony No. 9 came to him directly from God, and that he merely transcribed it. "What is man's soul? It is his true being, where God has placed a seed of Himself, and this seed contains the perfect answers to one's outside problems and inner questioning. It is the source of all inspiration and contains the power of all achievement and happiness. The soul is the innermost being of man himself. "To contact the soul, one learns 'to be still!' This divine search fulfills man's conquest of himself as he begins to live God's laws. As one learns 'to love God with all his heart, all his soul, all his mind, and all his strength,' he begins to find the joy and the meaning of existence. The search is one that no man can make for another. It is a quest which each individual must undertake for himself. It is each individual's own responsibility."—Annalee Skarin
