Resources for Aural | Trinity College London Trinity College London Aural Tests Aural. Aural tests are based around a single musical extract played at the piano by the examiner, with candidates asked to describe various features of the music such as dynamics, articulation, texture and style. Candidates are not required to sing. Drum kit candidates can take an unpitched aural test – see our Drum Kit & Percussion page. Supporting tests | Trinity College London Callum, from GSMD in London, performs an example Initial aural test. Our aural test supports the development of candidates' abilities in musical perception and understanding by requiring candidates to recognise musical features such as metre and pulse, pitch and performance characteristics by ear. Example Initial Aural Test | Trinity College London Candidates for Drum Kit exams can choose Unpitched Aural as one of their two supporting tests. This comprises time signature recognition, style recognition, identifying changes and providing accompaniment to a short piece of music played by the examiner at the piano, helping to develop key skills such as musical perception and ensemble playing.
